ABOUT ME

My previous professional path took me other places but I've always been very curious on the world of computer programming. After several years of working surrounded by engineers, I decided that I wanted to be one of those people who build things and make it work.

Before getting here, I completed my degree on Psychology and I also became a Sexologist. Due to this knowledge and experience, I have developed fundamental skills that allowed me working with different people around the world.

But once I've discovered how I love coding and solving problems, I've realized there is no way back!

JavaScript fangirl.

PHP enthusiastic.

Clean code on all things.

Time to code.
